

GUIDE FOR BUYERS OF NEW HOMES

Consumer Code for New Homes - www.consumercodefornewhomes.com

What is the Consumer Code for New Homes?

The Consumer Code for New Homes, approved by the Chartered Trading Standards Institute, has been established to ensure that best practice is followed by registered Developers in respect of the marketing & selling of New Homes to consumers. The Code also sets expected standards for after sales customer care service.

It has been established to be of maximum benefit to consumers and its ultimate aim is to provide a genuine commitment to consumers, to improving standards of construction and raise customer service standards in the New Homes market, recognising that part of that commitment is providing consumers with a voice and a clear complaints process when things simply don't go according to plan when they buy a New Home.

The Code ensures that Buyers of New Homes:

-  are treated fairly by the Developer (and their Agent)
-  are confident about the Developer's legal and professional status as a company
-  are given clear and reliable pre- contract information upon which to make decisions about purchasing a New Home
-  are reassured that their reservation deposit is protected and that they have 14 days to cancel the agreement
-  know what standards of construction to expect from the Developer
-  know what service levels to expect from the Developer (and their Agent)
-  are given reliable and realistic information about construction, completion and handover dates
-  understand what they have to do to maintain their New Home and address any problems that may arise
-  know how to make a complaint and access speedy, low-cost Dispute resolution arrangements if they are dissatisfied.
-  in a vulnerable position are identified and given suitable support to help assist them in making decisions.

What does the Code cover?

The Consumer Code for New Homes sets higher levels of consumer protection above and beyond the law. The Code covers the New Home buying process to ensure that the selling activities the Developer engages in are of a consistently high standard. This includes:

-  Pre-Purchase Stage: ensuring high standards of customer service, fair and clear documentation, adequate information provision
-  Contract Exchange Stage: governing the Contract of Sale, requiring minimum standards for fair and transparent contracts, accurate information about when the property will be available and protecting deposits
-  Handover and After Sales: providing minimum standards for handover and after sales processes, ensuring consumers' health & safety and ensuring they have suitable information for maintaining and living in your property
-  Complaints & Disputes: giving consumers access to clear, speedy and low cost dispute resolution if things don't go according to plan

Are my existing Consumer Rights affected?

Nothing contained within this Code affects a Buyer's existing legal rights and does not replace any existing legislation regarding the sale and marketing of New Homes to consumers.

How can I make a Complaint?

Taking consumer complaints seriously is very important to the Consumer Code for New Homes and because of this, the Code sets out a clear complaints process which is also supported by an independent Dispute Resolution Scheme, if complaints and issues with Developers turn into disputes.

The Code covers consumer complaints which are made in writing to our Developer Members within two years of the date of the completion of your New Home purchase; and it also benefits second (and subsequent) Buyers of the New Home in respect of after sales matters.

If you need to make a complaint, you should raise this with your Developer in the first instance, since they will be able to deal with your complaint quickly and effectively under their own Complaints Handling Procedure. However, if you have complained to your Developer and are not satisfied with the outcome, you may want to bring a Dispute to the relevant Warranty Body for mediation since the problem may fall under the Developer's responsibilities under the Structural Warranty. All registered Warranty Bodies offer a free mediation process to Buyers and in situations where your Dispute is not covered by the Structural Warranty, the Warranty Body can refer it to the Consumer Code for New Homes on your behalf.

And of course, if you remain dissatisfied with the Developer and Warranty Body's handling of your Dispute, then you can still refer it direct to the Consumer Code for New Homes.

Independent Dispute Resolution Scheme

One of the fundamental aspects of the Consumer Code for New Homes is the provision of access to a low-cost and effective dispute resolution scheme in the event that a dispute arises between a Buyer and a registered Developer. This can help to avoid costly and protracted legal action.

The Consumer Code for New Homes Dispute Resolution Scheme is operated by:

Centre for Effective Dispute Resolution

The scheme is independent of the Developer and the Warranty Bodies and any matter referred to this scheme concerns Disputes under the Consumer Code for New Homes only. The adjudication will be independent and conducted by a trained independent Adjudicator who must be a member of the Centre for Effective Dispute Resolution (CEDR).

How is the Consumer Code enforced?

Compliance with the Consumer Code for New Homes is mandatory for Developers which are members of the Code and monitoring of the effectiveness of the Code is a fundamental aspect of the Code Sponsor's activities. Developers are fully vetted before they are accepted as members, and then audited annually to ensure they remain in compliance with the Code.

Our Code Users (the Warranty Bodies who are signed up with us) also undertake site surveying activities during the construction phase of your New Home which helps to ensure that the quality of build is in compliance with the relevant regulations and expected quality standards.

If a Developer (or their Agent) is found to be in serious breach of the Code, the Code can apply a range of sanctions, including removal from the Code's Register of Members. This will also result in removal from the registers maintained by the Warranty Bodies which support the Code.

What if I want to give you some feedback?

This is a Consumer Code which we expect to grow and improve as the industry, consumer habits and expectations change, so in order to ensure we can continually improve, we are always keen to hear from consumers and members about their experiences of the Code in action and buying (or selling) a New Home.

Whether you had an excellent experience when buying a New Home from one of our Members, if someone went above and beyond for you or a relative or if you think there are positive improvements we can make to the Code, please don't hesitate to contact us.

In order to provide us with your feedback, please email us at feedback@ccnh.co.uk.

Your views and customer feedback is a vital part of the Code monitoring process and all communications will be read and considered; we do appreciate your feedback as this will help us to maintain the high standards we have set for the Code.
